

Plant the Right Seed and Harvest True Love

By Coach Colleen Brady, The True Love Coach

Plant the right seed and water that seedling with hope. Until now there has been no instruction book on how to know what you are looking for in a soul mate, true love, spouse, or life partner. What seed do you want to plant? What does Life, The Universe, God want for you. What type of person do you hope to harvest in your search for Mr. Right?

We often hope for something-anything, anybody, or any body. We plant a general seed and water the weeds right along with the seedling because we cannot tell the difference. We grow up immersed in our family and cultural norms about love, but those are not always a perfect fit for our personal definition of love. We are not our parents. We are not our culture. We need a way to help us discover what our definition of lasting true love is so that we can plant the right seed.

Here's the key

Turn within to find out what you want. Then plant that seed.

Once you discover that seed in your mind, you can find that seed in your heart and plant it with God in your prayers.

Metaphors are a great tool to assist you in finding out what true love means to you personally, so you plant the right seed, recognize the right seedling, avoid the weeds and poison ivy, and nurture and water what's important to you in your heart. What's important enough to you to spend the rest of your life with.

First think about what you want to be like in a relationship and start being that every day. Imagine feeling wonderful every day, being your perfect future every day, being God's best you every day.

That's quite attractive soil. It's attractive to seedlings and weeds alike. But because you define what your true love will be like, you will recognize him when you see him. You can ignore the weeds because you'll know your true love-no more guessing. Once you plant the right seed, you will harvest a true love that will blossom for you.
